Portland Children All Loused Up

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — There is a run on medicine here for treating head lice.

But health authorities disagree on how bad the outbreak is.

Dr. F. Sydney Hansen, Multnomah County health officer, said there are lice in the hair of thousands of children—hundreds more daily.

However, Dr. Thomas L. Meador, city health officer, said there is more hysteria than lice.

Long, Bitter Dispute Ended

LOCAL TEACHERS SETTLE FOR 11¼ PER CENT RAISE

Daring Photographer Gets Lift to Assignment

Vacancy Threat Lifted

Greater Victoria school teachers last night accepted wage increases averaging 11¼ per cent offered by Greater Victoria School Board.

Settlement of the long and bitter dispute has lifted the threat of teacherless classrooms from Greater Victoria's schools. The school board is one of the last in B.C. to reach agreement.

APPLICATIONS SLOW

Teachers were warned earlier this year that the Greater Victoria area was "in dispute" and applications for positions here were slow coming in.

The 11¼ per cent increase is less than the average of 13 per cent gained by teachers in those school districts in B.C. where "amicable negotiations" were carried out.

THROUGH 1959

Increases will not become effective until Sept. 1, but the new scales will continue through until Dec. 31, 1959.

A joint announcement of the agreement was made last night by Kenneth Leeming, chairman of the school board salary committee, and Walter Kitley, chairman of the teachers' negotiating committee.

OFFER REJECTED

A wage boost of 10 per cent was rejected by the teachers at a similar meeting May 14. More than 400 teachers voted to reject the school board offer.

Maximum and minimum salaries paid to teachers at present are $6,420 a year and $2,400. From Sept. 1 they will be $7,260 and $2,800.

GEN. RAOUL SALAN

'On to Paris' Chant

Salan Calls For Unity

ALGIERS (Reuters)—Gen. Raoul Salan Wednesday night called for unity between the French army and Algerian settlers as his audience chanted "the army to Paris."

"We will all march up the Champs Elysees together," the French commander in Algeria told a crowd of 7,000 persons, mainly Europeans, from a balcony at the ministry for Algeria.

An army spokesman later told reporters that Salan's "Champs Elysees" remark was only figurative.

WE'LL SAVE FRANCE

Jacques Soustelle, the former Algerian governor-general who spoke after Salan, said "our presence symbolizes the union of all patriotic forces which left Algeria to undertake to save the homeland."

"And from Algeria, as well as saving Algeria, we will save France," Soustelle said.

The French deputy, who escaped house arrest in Paris to join Algerian military leaders, said the salvation of Algeria depends upon the "name de Gaulle."

ARMY IS WITH US

Meanwhile, a leading French settler on the all-Algerian public safety committee demanded the resignation of Premier Pierre Pflimlin, saying "the army is with us."

Alain de Serigny, publisher of the newspaper Echo d'Alger, declared: "We want to get rid of the present regime. The army is with us. The French Republic will remain intact and the only man capable of leading it is Gen. de Gaulle."

FULL INTEGRATION

He added that the public safety committee, which seized power under army leadership in Algiers May 13, wants full integration of Algerian Moslems with the French, giving them equal voting rights and parliamentary representation.

Some of the extremists among the French settlers have expressed reserve about integration with the Moslems. If taken literally, the proposal would put more than 100 Moslems in the French National Assembly.

DESIRE FOR PEACE

Despite de Serigny's statement some observers here said the army wants to reach a settlement with the Pflimlin regime. Some officers, however, still believe de Gaulle is the only man who can re-establish unity.

De Gaulle Gains Support

PARIS (Reuters) — A new political move to bring Gen. Charles de Gaulle to power was made Wednesday even as Premier Pierre Pflimlin sought to win over French military commanders in Algeria.

Conservative leader Antoine Pinay offered to act as go-between for the government and negotiate terms with de Gaulle for his acceptance of the premiership. So far, the offer has not been accepted.

Pflimlin worked diligently behind the scenes to maintain power and resolve the split between his regime and the army and settlers in Algeria.

Officials here say that in line with establishing better liaison Pflimlin will send armed forces chief Henri Lorillot to Algiers shortly.

Helpless Baby Badly Hurt

TORONTO (BUP) — A two-month-old Toronto baby boy is in hospital after older children cruelly abused him as he lay in his carriage. The baby was beaten with branches and sand was stuffed in his mouth, nose and ears. Then rocks were piled on him before a neighbor heard his cries.

No Curb on 'Foreign' Ships

Two City Shipyards In Danger—Husband

By COURTNEY TOWER

Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot, yesterday protested a royal commission's recommendation against excluding Commonwealth vessels from Canadian coastal trade.

Victoria's two major shipyards, with a payroll of $25,000 to $30,000 a day, will "deteriorate" seriously unless further naval shipbuilding is combined with "some restrictions on vessels operating in our coastal trade," Mr. Husband said.

He was speaking as president of the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association, which represents the nation's major shipyards.

THREE YEARS' STUDY

The Royal Commission on Coasting Trade tabled in the House of Commons yesterday a report based on three years of study. Its main question was whether Canadian coastal shipping—shipping from one Canadian port to another—should be restricted, especially in view of next spring's opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway, when ocean-going vessels will be able to penetrate to the heart of the continent.

The Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association, at hearings of the commission across the country, pressed its demand that coastal shipping be restricted to Canadian-registered and built ships. This would protect Canada's shipbuilding industry and keep it in a state of war preparedness.

The commission's report turned the suggestion down.

TEMPORARY PERMISSION

At present, only Commonwealth vessels are allowed to compete in the Candian coastal trade. Temporary permission can be given by the cabinet to foreign ships to enter the trade.

Mr. Husband said he was "very disappointed" and the association would make further representations to the federal government.

"With the present naval shipbuilding contracts coming to an end all across Canada, the industry had been hoping that the restricting of Canadian coastal trade to Canadian-built and registered ships would provide some measure of employment in the Canadian shipyards," he said.

WITHOUT RESTRICTION

"The recommendations, if adopted by the government, will mean that vessels of any Commonwealth country, principally Britain, will be able to engage without restriction in the Canadian coastal trade with vessels

'Least Red Squeak' Heard in Britain?

LONDON (AP)—Two former Royal Navy men went on trial Wednesday for preparing a magazine article claiming the Western powers deliberately provoke international incidents to get information from Russia.

They were charged with a breach of the Official Secrets Act. The Crown told the court some parts of their article were true. It did not specify which.

Crown counsel Griffith Jones said both men, now students at Oxford University, served in a secret branch of the Royal Navy and "became acquainted with such of the activities as are mentioned in that article which are true."

The article, which appeared in the university magazine Isis, claimed that a peg-legged Royal Navy captain once put a landing party ashore in Russian territory to get information about Soviet forces.

On trial are Paul Thompson, 22, and William Miller, 24, assistant editors of Isis.

Griffith Jones read from the article which said in part:

"All along the frontier between East and West from Iraq to the Baltic and perhaps farther, are monitoring stations avidly recording the least squeak from Russian transmitters, ships, tanks, airplanes, troops and control stations."

Schoolgirls Battle With Tacks or Fists

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said they broke up a fight Tuesday between two 13-year-old schoolgirls who were battling with thumb tacks taped to their knuckles.

About 40 teen-agers were urging the girls on.

One of the girls had her arm gashed by a piece of broken glass that the other said she used because she saw an on-looker pass a knife to her opponent.

Townsend Affair Is Dead

Palace Spikes Margaret Rumor

LONDON (UP) — Buckingham Palace issued a special announcement last night flatly denying new reports that Princess Margaret might marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend after all.

The official statement said the princess' three dates in eight days with the handsome divorced father of two sons in no way changed her public statment in 1955 breaking off the romance.

In that statement, Margaret renounced her love for the war hero in favor of her duty to her sister Queen Elizabeth. As head of the Church of England, Elizabeth stands strongly opposed to divorce.

The new palace announcement came after Margaret, 27, entertained the 43-year-old Townsend at dinner at Clarence House, her official residence, Tuesday night. Townsend was a guest there for five hours.

The Swiss newspaper, the Tribune de Geneve, carried a report that the couple might become engaged. But Buckingham Palace scotched the report.

"The press secretary to the Queen is authorized to say that the report in the Tribune de Geneve concerning a possible engagement between Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend, is entirely untrue.

Canadian Survey U.S. Defence Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The United States will conduct surveys in Canada to determine the extent of the need for a new detection and warning system against intercontinental ballistic missiles.

External Affairs Minister Smith yesterday informed the Commons the government has granted permission to the U.S. government to conduct these surveys.

Officials indicated that the surveys will have two main objectives:

1. Improvement of the present radar warning system by introduction of automation into the air defence processes.

2. Determination whether a warning system against missiles can be superimposed on the present warning system against bombers.

The first objective probably will involve introduction of the U.S. Semi-Automatic Ground Environment system into Canadian air defence. This system already is being installed in the continental U.S.

Authorities have said that the present $1,200,000,000 warning system—the DEW Distant Early Warning, mid-Canada and Pinetree lines—is incapable of detecting intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Snow Snaps Mexican Heat

MEXICO CITY (UP) —A freak snowstorm turned the outskirts of Mexico City into a winter wonderland yesterday and abruptly ended a heatwave that had gripped the capital for weeks.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

A NECK of land took shape through the haze of Hecate Strait. It was Rose Spit, the northeastern extremity of Graham Island in the lonely Queen Charlottes.

Within living memory the Haida Indians paddled from these islands in 40- to 70-foot war canoes, trading and fighting north to Alaska and south as far as California, coming home with eulachon oil, blankets, captives and the heads of slain enemies.

They were the Vikings of the Pacific. Below our B.C. Airlines float plane, now, the descendants of the warrior Haidas manned the halibut boats that looked so small as they bobbed among the whitecaps.

A Haida Indian lady returning to Masset with a load of Prince Rupert plants for her garden, pointed down with a smile at the land, and moved aside a baby rose bush that was near my eye.

We were flying parallel to miles of silver-grey beach where long white ocean waves came surging in. Pale, jumbled driftwood lined the beach at tide-mark. A spiky forest of virgin spruce extended southward to the limit of visibility.

A grey cabin stood in a small meadow. No smoke issued from its chimney.

"Deserted?" I asked. Pilot Bill Malischewski nodded. A thin road crawled among the trees. A rock bluff rose abruptly from the shore, and I saw its name on the map: Tow Hill. Here was another ghost of a shanty in a clearing.

For a time, long ago, there was a thriving community of frontier farmers here. Between 100 and 200 people used to pick up mail at Tow Hill post office. All of them except two or three are gone. There is no more post office. Distances to markets were too great for the farmers. The sticky muskeg soil was hard to tame.

Some of the settlers walked out of their laboriously-built houses without bothering to remove anything, and joined the army in 1914. They never came back. Their cattle went wild; passing clam-diggers helped themselves to the furniture.

The bustling frontier community fell silent, and there were only the ravens and eagles, and the wind blowing from the Pacific through the spruce forests.

Eight thousand Haidas, by estimate, once lived in a score of villages all over the Queen Charlottes. Smallpox, tuberculosis and whisky reduced their numbers as low as 600, until medical help turned back the advance of death. Now there are about 1,000 Haidas, and about the same number of whites.

Of the old Haida villages, only fragments of rotting timber and holes in the ground remain, overwhelmed by the rich growth of the rain-fed bush. All but a few totem poles have been taken to museums. At one place, it is said, a half-completed giant canoe lies in the forest where its makers, suddenly ill with smallpox, left it and staggered away.

Failure and vanished glory are in the air of the Queen Charlottes. And yet, as the observer looks down on the lonely, wind-swept beaches, and the unbroken forests, he feels elated at the idea that there are still places like this in the world. Apartment houses and gas stations may have a beauty of their own. But there is a lot to be said for the wilderness too. And in some parts of our country, the wilderness is shrinking too fast.

These thoughts came to mind as the plane drove along the north Graham Island coast toward Massett.

Victorian Wins Sword

Premier's Message 'Constructive'

'Keep on Toes' Hardwareman Tells Britons

A Kelowna businessman met 11 wealthy, successful British businessmen in Victoria Monday and advised them to keep on their toes and be more competitive if they want to sell to British Columbia.

The Kelowna businessman is quite successful, too—he is Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who owns hardware stores in the Okanagan. The visiting British businessmen were the 11-man United Kingdom Trade Delegation led by millionaire industrialist Sir William Rootes.

And following the delegation's talk with Mr. Bennett Sir William described it as "perhaps the most constructive we have had so far."

"The whole purpose of our visit is to secure a better balance of trade between Canada and Britain," he said. "The premier showed a keen interest in our mission.

"He asked a number of questions and he offered constructive suggestions as to how trade between B.C. and Britain could be improved."

The trade mission arrived in Victoria by plane Monday after an aerial survey of the Island. They landed at Campbell River and inspected the pulp mill and were shown where Ripple Rock used to be.

Back in Vancouver Tuesday, Sir William, chairman of Britain's Dollar Exports Council and Rootes Motors Limited, put the mission's purpose in a nutshell.

"We want more dollars in our kitty so we can spend more. At present the trade ratio between Canada and Britain is eight to five in your favor. We want to maintain that balance and to improve it if necessary."

The council is not entirely concerned with trading within the Commonwealth or with dollar areas, said Sir William.

"If we're going to have full employment and a better standard of living we must have expanding world trade."

Delayed Response Caused Confusion

Park Benches Kept Empty

Victorians responded generously at the last moment to an appeal for accommodation for out-of-towners taking part in the Victoria Day parade.

Mrs. Ethel Bishop, Greater Victoria Celebrations Association secretary, says more than 150 calls poured into the office during the two days preceding the parade from householders anxious to help house the record influx of visiting parade participants.

But in some ways the situation was "too much, too late."

The last minute nature of the response to an appeal made at intervals for the past several weeks produced a snarl-up that left some would-be hosts with our guests.

Mrs. Bishop said she wished to thank all those who offered assistance and to tender apologies if the last-minute mixup caused inconvenience or disappointment.

Despite the hectic nature of the deadline arrangements, more than 500 visitors were provided some kind of shelter. More than 200 bedded down in Central Junior High School and an estimated 300 were given accommodation in private homes.

Engineers Accept Offer

Threat of Strike Ends at Hospital

Threat of a strike at St. Joseph's Hospital has ended with acceptance by the International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 918, of an offer of a six per cent wage increase.

The men, who provide the hospital with hot water and steam, were asking for 7½ per cent as recommended in the majority report of a conciliation board.

First Time in Six Months

Unemployment Declining

OTTAWA (BUP) — Unemployment in Canada has declined for the first time in six months, but more than 500,000 Canadians were still looking for work by mid-April.

A government survey has es-seeking jobs by April 19 at 516,000. It was a decrease of 74,000 from the previous month.

The latest figure compared with 306,000 unemployed a year ago. In addition to those out of work and seeking jobs, another 32,000 persons were on temporary layoff in the survey period.

The 516,000 figure represented 8.6 per cent of the total labor force, well above the previous April peak of 6 per cent set three years ago.

A month earlier, however, one in every 10 members of the

Hot Mountain Ordeal Fails to Halt Lizzies

OSOYOOS, B.C. (CP) — The B.C. centennial vintage car trek wheeled into this Okanagan community yesterday after braving mountain ranges in blazing sunshine which pushed temperatures to 93 degrees.

Only one car was reported a casualty on the 90-mile lap from Nelson, a 1908 Lozier. The car later was reported under way and was expected to catch up with the rest of the field.

The 19-car cavalcade was joined at Osoyoos by three more entries—a 1924 Morris-Cowley, a 1920 Ford, and a 1913 American La France fire truck which served both Nelson and Oliver in former years.

A Brooks steamer has been shipped ahead to rejoin the troupe after the worst of the grades have been mastered.

Still on Payroll

By H. L. JONES

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Crown witness in the Sommers bribery conspiracy trial who says he left one of the accused companies because of suspicions of phony deals, disclosed Wednesday he is still on the firm's payroll at $10,000 a year.

Trevor Daniels, former chief financial officer of B.C. Forest Products, volunteered the statement before Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in the Supreme Court trial. The case involves former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, three other individuals and four companies.

Daniels, who has testified that he was told "all or part" of a $30,000 B.C. Forest payment to another accused firm was to go to Sommers for a government timber licence, said he wanted to correct testimony he gave Tuesday.

He had testified that he left the big timber firm in December, 1954. That was so, but he said he had been retained on full salary until Jan. 31, 1955, and since then had been "on the payroll at $10,000 a year."

When Mr. Justice Wilson asked if it was a pension, Daniels replied: "Yes, but more in the form of a retainer, my Lord."

Later under re-examination by crown prosecutor Victor Dryer, Daniels said he thought his 1954 salary with the company was $19,200 a year, plus an annual $4,500 bonus. He said he would continue to draw his $10,000-a-year retainer until 1960.

Accused in the case besides Sommers are H. W. Gray, John Gray, Charles D. Schultz, the C. D. Schultz Company Limited; Pacific Coast Services Limited, Evergreen Lumber Sales Limited and B.C. Forest Products.

Sommers resigned from the provincial cabinet in 1956 but is still a member of the legislature. He and all other accused have pleaded not guilty to the crown's 38-count indictment charging a conspiracy in connection with issuance of forest management licences. The crown alleges Sommers pocketed some $14,000 while minister.

Completion of Daniels' testimony cleared the way for appearance today of the Crown's chief witness, accountant Charles Eversfield. The prosecution bases much of its case on documents taken by Eversfield when he left his accountant's job with the Pacific firm in 1955. It is expected he will be on the witness stand for more than a week.

built in British yards, under very much lower wage scales, approximately one-third lower, and operated by crews paid on U.K. wage rates."

Mr. Husband said it also would be likely that Canadians entering the trade, which will be greatly expanded by the seaway, will build their ships in Britain.

He noted that the United States restricts its coastal shipping (which would apply on the U.S. side of the seaway) to U.S.-built and registered ships, as well as providing other subsidies, as a means of keeping coastal and merchant fleets active and yards busy.

Canada should have a merchant marine of her own, Mr. Husband said.

EMERGENCY

". . . and if we do not have a coastal shipping industry and a shipbuilding industry in being, we will not be in a position to service our export requirements, or our navy, in time of emergency," he said.

The time is coming in Canada when, unless there is more naval construction and some coastal shipping restrictions are implemented, the nation's shipyards will disappear, he said.

He stressed that the two shipyards here, Victoria Machinery Depot and Yarrows, have a daily pay roll of "$25,000 to $30,000."

The commission said increased transportation costs would result from restrictions, crippling some Canadian industries dependent on cheap water transportation. Mr. Husband said most of these industries hadn't been started yet . . . they were only planned as an outgrowth of the seaway opening.

ALTERNATIVES

As alternatives to excluding Commonwealth vessels, the commission suggested:

1. A policy of direct government subsidies to the shipbuilders;

2. Tariff protection against British-made vessels which now can be purchased by Canadian shippers duty-free. This tariff would have to be quite high, as the Canadian vessels cost so much more to construct than British ones;

3. Annual subsidies to the operators of ships newly built in Canada;

4. A taxation device to provide an inducement to ship owners to order ships built in Canada.

Basically Unsound

REPORTS from Ottawa that the Dominion old-age pension fund is getting deeper and deeper into debt to the treasury fail to make "news" except in the matter of the size of the current deficit. In that respect the state of the fund illustrates the magnitude of the problem which Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government inherited from the former Liberal administration.

Represented to the country as a contributory and self-sustaining fund, the "universal" pension plan was the main plank of the Liberal party in the general election of 1949. There can be little doubt that it was instrumental in securing re-election for the Liberals, despite doubts thrown on its soundness by many critics. Since 1952 when the system went into operation the formula has remained unchanged, though the original $40 pension was raised to $46 by the Liberals and later to $55 by the Progressive Conservatives.

The fact is—and it needs no mathematician to demonstrate it—that the much-touted 2-2-2 contributory fund was actuarially unsound the day it was set up and has remained that way ever since. The levies of 2 per cent each on sales of goods and personal and corporation incomes were supposed in theory to provide a fund sufficient to pay a life pension to everyone reaching the age of 70 years. They never have done so, and it is obvious from the steadily mounting deficits that they never will. All this was predicted from the beginning. Though the deficits now are much bigger than they were a few years ago, from an actuarial standpoint the scheme is no worse under one government than another because it was fundamentally unsound to start with.

To put pensions on a firm, self-sustaining footing it would be necessary to throw out the 2-2-2 formula and substitute one that is fully contributory in the way that employer-employee pension plans are. That is not as simple as it may sound, however, for any increases in the benefits such as have been made twice in the last few years would have to be accompanied by increases in the premiums. Under the present formula enough revenue for the fund appears to be obtainable only by increasing the percentage of tax in the three divisions, a move which would be decidedly unpopular.

The present adverse state of the fund does not appear to lend itself to any simple solution. The whole subject needs one of Mr. Dulles' "agonizing reappraisals", for it is absurd to keep up this pretence of having a pension fund when all it contains or is ever likely to contain is an enormous debt.

Parliament Is Supreme

THERE is a good deal of vague talk in parliamentary circles at Ottawa about Canada's position in the event of a sudden national emergency arising through an unproclaimed war. The debate, often spurred by Opposition members seeking to embarrass the government, has been dragging on, in and out of the Commons, since the change-over of administrations two elections ago. Basically, however, can there be any real dispute? Canada can neither afford to break-step in the larger North American warning and defence system by insisting on written notice in the event of untoward action in the face of any actual threat; nor can it surrender the fundamental right of Parliament on behalf of the people to decide this nation's course with respect to any conflict which, declared or undeclared, might be involved in the circumstances. In short, only Parliament can decide what the nation will then do.

Discussion of the matter tends to confuse both of these elements. There are those who say that Canada should not agree to participation in an instantaneous state of preparedness used as a direct deterrent to any outside attack. In today's circumstances that is neither realistic nor defensible. It is like building a fence and leaving out a quarter of the pickets on one side. Nor does it follow that because the nation subscribes to preparedness, its course of action in the event of hostilities has been set and sealed in advance. Both of these issues, while bearing on the same set of facts, are distinct and separate.

It is for that reason that the debate in its present form is causing some unnecessary confusion. The administration, and not the Opposition, carries the responsibility of seeing to it that Canada's co-operation in continental defence is the best that can possibly be achieved; but also that no national right which can be exercised only by Parliament in full and formal debate is short-circuited in the process. The realities of the times demand preparedness; but no surrender of sovereignty.

Red Shield Appeal

THE annual appeal of the Salvation Army for support in its many-sided charitable and welfare services opened this month throughout the country. In Greater Victoria the aim of the Red Shield drive is $40,000, approximately the same as it has been in the last two years. This year a small sum has been included to permit a start in the Salvation Army's preliminary plans to make use of the beautiful site of Mount Adelaide on Dunsmuir Road, bequeathed by the Matson estate. Eventually the organization hopes to have in operation there its long-dreamed-of "Eventide Home" for men.

One of the pioneer charitable organizations in the community, the Red Shield agencies embrace family welfare, care of the aged, Sunset Lodge and the Men's Hostel; as well as the League of Mercy, Harbor Light and other express missions. Its yearly appeal for support for the very active program is never pressed, but it is left to the community to decide in what fashion the public can be of help. Most of the $40,000 budget this year will be absorbed in continuation of the regular Red Shield services, which have to be attended to first before the prospect of extension can be considered. A token canvass of the community by 200 Salvation Army personnel and their friends is obviously designed on a voluntary response basis.

This is one call in the year which Victorians take at its face value. The fine work of the Salvation Army is well known and there is hardly a section of the community it does not reach through one or other of the Red Shield agencies. The absence of pressure in the appeal and the entirely voluntary concept of this approach places the onus on citizens to declare, each in his or her own way, what they can do to help. Up to the present the Red Shield appeals have never failed, for all of this unforced attitude. There is every reason to believe that it will be the same this time, and that the carefully budgeted sum sought will be raised by public subscription during May without difficulty.

Interpreting the News

French Police Factor in Case

By BERNARD KAPLAN

North American Newspaper Alliance

PARIS — The police rather than the army may turn out to be the key to the immediate crisis threatening the break-up of the French republic.

If the Paris government can maintain its authority over the police, danger of the Algerian coup d'etat spreading to metropolitan France will be significantly diminished. Without the hope of overthrowing the Paris regime, the Algerian "Committee of Public Safety" would probably find it advisable to come to terms with the republic.

Observers here are agreed that much depends on the police. In Algiers and other cities, the police either were overwhelmed by superior numbers or freely went along with the insurgents—reports are not yet clear which was the course of events.

In France proper, the police have shown no sign of defecting from the government, and they are probably stronger than the depleted military forces garrisoned here.

During the hectic 48 hours following the Algiers' rising, Premier Pierre Pflimlin's only immediate trump was the swift and efficient manner in which the police, acting on his orders, clamped down on rightist trouble-makers. Within a few hours, they had arrested more than 150 of the most dangerous. Only two men marked for arrest were able to evade capture. This was because, as a police official said concisely, "We knew where they all were when we wanted them."

It seems likely that the police, by showing they had thorough control of the situation, rapidly cooled off a great number of hotheads who might otherwise have seized the opportunity to create chaos here.

In France, far more than in any other western nation, the police are pivotal. France, while a democracy, is also a "police state." It has been a "police state" longer than it has been a democracy. In the past, the police's loyalty has been traditionally to the "state" rather than to the particular political regime in power at the time.

This is what worries many French republicans. They are uncertain whether the police would defend the Fourth Republic against a determined coup or whether they would stand aside, later placing itself at the disposition of the new regime.

They recall that the police shifted smoothly from the Third Republic to Vichy, and even co-operated effectively with the Germans during the wartime occupation.

"By the way, what have we been doing about Latin America these past few years?"

Bill of Rights

Limitations Needed, Too

From the Rural Scene

PRIME Minister Diefenbaker has promised to introduce a Canadian Bill of Rights at this next session of Parliament.

Canadians need such a bill, and needs it badly. But a bill of rights is not a thing that can be lightly thrown together and made law without the most careful thought and preparation

The first step in preparing such a bill must be to clearly define, in our own minds, what we mean by "rights."

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights put forward by the General Assembly of the United Nations, and ratified by the Parliament of Canada after only the most cursory examination, causes us to wonder whether the new Parliament will give any more serious consideration to a Canadian Bill of Rights than that former Parliament gave to the Universal Declaration.

That document reads more like a catalogue of things it would be nice for everybody to have than a serious statement of the rights of men to live on the earth as free and responsible beings and to pursue the activities necessary to such living.

The true purpose of a bill of rights is to define clearly the natural rights of men as men, which those in authority over them must not infringe.

The original Bill of Rights, enacted nearly three centuries ago, was the product of long years of struggle of Parliament against the tyranny of the Crown. It was the work of outstanding men who have been active in the struggle, and who understood the issues involved.

In the language of Wentworth, they said:

"We must vindicate our ancient liberties; we must reinforce the laws made by our ancestors. We must set such a stamp upon them that no licentious spirit shall dare hereafter to invade them."

Those were rights worth fighting for. They were far different from the "adequate standard of living," the "holidays with pay," the "social security" and other amiable wishes which the Declaration would elevate to the dignity of rights, but which, if attained, would reduce the people to mere wards of the state incapable of providing for themselves.

The passing of the original Bill of Rights put an end to the tyranny of the kings. It did so by putting the Crown under the authority of Parliament—a most effective measure. But power is power wherever it is, and those who wield it are always prone to abuse it.

The danger to our freedom today is not in the power of the monarch, but in that of our democratic governments. These governments have discovered that they have power to rob the citizens of their basic rights just as effectively as the old kings ever did; and they are doing it, and doing it under the law.

The most glaring instance of this is the power given by the British North America Act to the provincial legislatures to pass any laws they like dealing with the property and civil rights of the citizens.

We suggest that the first step towards the enactment of a Bill of Rights should be an amendment to the BNA Act that would set definite limits to the power of provincial legislatures over the property and civil rights of the citizens. If the government does that it will be a good beginning for a bill that will grow as need develops.

Gerald Waring

Reports from Ottawa

SPEAKER Michener of the Commons took action last fall to help those MPs afflicted by hardness of hearing. He had individual hearing aids installed at certain desks so those who didn't hear well could plug into the Commons' sound reinforcement system.

Five sets were installed—four for MPs who wanted them, and one for a PM who didn't want it, but who just couldn't afford to sit there and miss part of what was going on in the Commons.

Even now Prime Minister Diefenbaker uses his personal sound pipeline with obvious distaste. During question periods he slouches in his seat and cups the tiny amplifier to his ear. While others wear theirs as unselfconsciously as they do their glasses, he resorts to his aid only when he must hear, and then almost surreptitiously.

However, soon the wearing of personal earphones in the chamber will no longer be a sign of hearing deficiency. The Throne Speech, which in effect Diefenbaker wrote, announced that the government intends to have a simultaneous translation system installed in the Commons. Then, when French is being spoken, English-speaking MPs will use "hearing aids" to get the English translation, and vice-versa.

And, of course, when everybody uses a "hearing aid," nobody need be embarrassed.

Theoretically MPs should benefit from being able to hear simultaneous interpretations of their colleagues' speech in the other language—that is, if they bother to listen. Now translations are available in Hansard only next day, and I suspect few MPs bother to read them.

However, there are disadvantages to the plan. It is certain to discourage MPs from learning the other language. Why should an MP from the prairies, say, bother to learn French when he can get a running translation merely by donning a hearing aid?

The move is being interpreted as a government gesture towards Quebec—but it may well turn out to be a body blow to bilingualism in the Commons. It will tend to maintain rather than reduce the language barrier in the important field of personal contact between French-speaking and English-speaking MPs.

It is also certain to cost considerable money when you reckon the initial cost of the equipment, the cost of maintaining it, and the cost of maintaining a staff of interpreters. It could well cost a million dollars in the four or five-year life of this Parliament. But, as somebody once said, "What's a million?"

The odd thing about this play is that there seems to be no particular demand for it among the MPs. When the Universal Postal Union met in the Commons chamber last summer it used a simultaneous multi-translation system. Last fall a couple of French-Canadian Liberals asked Postmaster-General Hamilton and Solicitor-General Balcer about it. Neither of the Liberals pressed for its adoption in the Commons.

Hamilton volunteered that "several of the members" had commented to him on the UPU system. He did not say that any of them had advocated its use in the Commons.

Balcer announced that a committee "has been appointed or will be appointed shortly" to consider a simultaneous translation system for the Commons. It would be "made up of the Speaker, representatives of the various parties and . . . the departments concerned," Balcer said.

No such committee was ever established. There is no hint that one will be set up this session. The man who wrote the Throne Speech seems already to have made up his mind.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

GRANDMAS have a way of their own in pushing a baby carriage. It bears no resemblance to the way mothers handle them.

A grandma makes a sort of ceremony out of it. A parade of two. She goes slower, of course. But it is not the slowness alone that creates the difference. There is a kind of wistful dignity and a faint dreaminess in the way a grandma shoves a pram. It is as if she were lost, or partly lost, in memory.

A mother shoves a pram the way a skilled hockey player stickhandles the puck. A mother approaches a baby carriage with the off-hand assurance in which a taxi-driver enters traffic.

It was, therefore, a delight to see a grandma, yesterday, in the super market, handling a go-cart with all the familiar ease and celerity of a mother. The baby was about 18 months old. The grandma was one of those tweedy, fifty-year-old brindle-blonde types of women who look as if they had made a success of their husbands. Efficient, confident, assured. I followed her out of the big store onto the street, and was amused to think she was taking pleasure in pretending to be the mother, as she whistled the go-cart up the street.

I met the postman, and, as usual, paused for a chat. I mentioned the brisk grandma, disappearing up the block.

"Grandma? Heck!" said the postman. "That's her baby. It is seventeen years younger than her next youngest."

So I stick to it: grandmas have a way of their own.

Crackpot Pilots

(From the Calgary Albertan)

MAGISTRATE Frank Quigley uttered some sage words in Calgary police court Saturday when he heard the case of a pilot who pleaded guilty to reckless operation of an aircraft.

The pilot, in a rented plane, had buzzed trains, boats, farms, and finally cars on the highway. He gave up only when he damaged his landing gear on the roof of a car, fortunately not hurting anyone seriously.

"Motorists have enough to contend with these days without having to worry about crackpot pilots," said the magistrate.

Because the pilot was only 27 and had no previous convictions, the penalty was only a $600 fine.

If ever a mandatory prison term was justified, it was in this case. The magistrate was too lenient.

Guessing Game

Approach to Summit

By W. N. EWER, from London

IT was perhaps a little disrespectful of one of my journalistic colleagues to describe the three-days' discussion by the NATO foreign ministers of relations with the Soviet Union as a "guessing game." But it is not very inaccurate.

The main topic of this whole council meeting has been the prospect of a summit meeting and the right diplomatic approach to it. All thinking on this subject is necessarily conditioned by one's assessment of the intentions and purposes of the Soviet government in proposing such a meeting, and since the proposal was made both Soviet utterances and Soviet actions have been somewhat enigmatic.

The attitude of the NATO governments remains as set out in the declaration of the council as communicated to the Soviet government on March 31. It is that "the present international situation requires that a serious attempt be made to reach agreement on the main problems affecting the attainment of peace and stability in the world."

The question which confronted this meeting was whether this view of the purposes of the summit meeting is shared by the Soviet Union or whether the Soviet leaders look on such a meeting simply as an occasion and an opportunity for a battle of propaganda. Are they in a constructive or in a combative mood? In one form of another, minister after minister posed that question. I do not think that any feels really confident of the answer.

Since the end of March when the three Western powers proposed that the diplomatic preparations for a summit meeting should start in Moscow in the second half of April, Soviet utterances have been anything but enlightening. And Soviet actions have aroused new apprehensions.

There is the outstanding fact of the accusation in the Security Council that the United States is endangering peace by precautionary bomber flights in the Arctic areas of the western hemisphere; followed by the Soviet veto of the American proposal for an international inspection system in the Arctic, approved by every other member of the Security Council. And not only the fact but the tone and manner of the Russian attack.

Is this compatible with a desire for constructive summit talks in the near future? Does it not worryingly suggest that the attitude of the Soviet delegation at the summit meeting would be similarly pugnacious? And if it were, would there be any hope of "reaching agreement on significant subjects?"

The second worrying thought expressed during the NATO Council discussions springs from Soviet tactics with regard to the diplomatic preparations in Moscow. It was agreed that conversations should start on April 17. They have still not started. First Mr. Gromyko raised procedural difficulties. His demands were accepted by the Western powers. But then, instead of beginning conversations, he sent for the three ambassadors and simply handed them another memorandum. And again it was enigmatic.

One of the issues has been whether, as the Western powers wish, these preliminary talks in Moscow can deal with matters of substance as well as of procedure. The latest Soviet memorandum simply repeats an earlier formula. The Soviet government "does not exclude that there can take place in the case of necessity and with general agreement an exchange of opinions on some of the questions which the parties propose to include on the agenda of a conference at the summit."

To define its meaning is part of the "guessing game." It is clear that the Russians, for whatever reason, are being quite deliberately enigmatic. Which in itself does not encourage optimism, though it is easy to see reasons why they may wish for a summit for their own purposes. Faced by this Moscow smokescreen the practically unanimous view of this council meeting can be summed up thus.

First, that the NATO governments still wish for a summit meeting provided that the Soviet government's attitude as it develops makes it possible to expect "serious discussions of major problems." Second, that to ensure this, careful preparation is plainly essential. Third, that one purpose of this preparation should be to make sure what the Russians really have in mind. Fourth, that in the meantime there must be no weakening of the defensive position of the NATO alliance.

The outcome of this meeting—and it is an important one—has been to establish and register full agreement on these lines.

Letter to the Editor

Nothing Unusual

I think it would be far wiser in the future if before you published reports of the happenings in Central Saanich or any other area that you first ascertain the facts then you may avoid the biased reports, allegations and misrepresentations contained in your article of Sunday's issue entitled "Ban Aimed at Mink," etc.

First of all the bylaw does not ban any type of farming or agriculture. It merely places a restriction or limitation so that a person may not erect a pigsty, mink hut, barn or henhouse under the noses of the residents of that particular area if they do not desire it. If these residents within 500 feet do not object then there is nothing to stop any person from venturing into any farming project, not even a "farm for baseball players."

If there was any lack of ethics in connection with the council meeting it was that an outsider intruded himself in the first place, and secondly that any of us were allowed to debate the by-law at all at this juncture, seeing that a public meeting had previously been called at its second reading for discussion on its merits and curiously enough it was at the instigation of these co-called mink farmers that the bylaw is as drastic as it is in its present form; but compare it with those existing in other municipalities before giving the impresson to your readers that Central Saanich is proposing anything so out of keeping with long established procedure.

Unless the writer is misinformed the Mr. Lazarz you mention has not applied for a permit to raise fur-bearing animals or to erect shelters for them.

Just in passing I might mention that the piece of land in question is part of a berry farm, about three acres, surrounded by residential properties and only about 150 yards more or less from a school and a store.

Finally, no "real" agriculture group has taken any action concerning this bylaw.

Strike-Idled CNR Fleet Up for Sale

OTTAWA (CP) — The eight-vessel fleet of the Canadian National West Indies Steamships, idled by strike since last July, will be sold and the government-owned service abandoned, Transport Minister Hees announced yesterday in the Commons.

He read a statement by J. A. Sauve, general manager of the publicly-owned company, saying it was "most unlikely" that heavy operating losses could be avoided if the ships were put back into service again by the company.

Staid Old Wimbledon Bans Colorful Attire

LONDON (AP)—Staid old Wimbledon today banned gold lame panties from its tennis courts—even when they're worn by shapely blonde Karol Fageros.

The 21-year-old former model from Miami, Fla., turned up in the French championships Tuesday wearing gold lame panties edged with black lace.

"I'm hoping to wear them at Wimbledon next month—if they'll let me," she said.

Well, Karol, they won't.

"It is quite clearly covered by the rules," said Col. Duncan Macaulay, secretary of the Wimbledon championships. "They state that players must wear white.

"If all the colors of the rainbow were allowed, there would be the danger of putting an opponent off."

Miss Fageros, five-feet eight and weighing a well-distributed 130 pounds, received a mixture of cheers and frowns at Wimbledon last year—the year she became known as "the Golden Goddess."

She then wore a Grecian silk jersey, very decollete but draped with a stole, embroidered with gold tennis raquets, over her tennis outfit, a low-cut dress that ...

It was a sensational outfit in the tradition of Gussie Moran's lace panties, later leopard skin, and Italian Lea Perrola's frilly pink underslip.

But the gentlemen of Wimbledon just won't go for any gold lame panties.

Gussie Erupts

NEW YORK (AP)—"Why, I'm thunderstruck," said Gorgeous Gussie Moran Wednesday when told that Karol Fageros' gold lame panties had been barred from the Wimbledon tennis courts.

"The next thing they will be doing is taking away women's suffrage," Gussie added.

"This action is dictatorial. It's czaristic. It's a blow at democracy and freedom.

"It's like . . . busting Sally Rand's bubble and cutting Lady Godiva's hair."

Four-Minute Battle . . . . . . Predicted by Aussie

Centennial Mile Building Up

VANCOUVER — Australian miler Merv Lincoln arrived in Vancouver Tuesday with the word he wouldn't be surprised if at least five men break the four-minute mark in the British Columbia centennial games "Mile of the Century."

The 24-year-old economics ... Derek Ibbotson, the great English miler, Poland's Stefan Lewandowski and Australian Alex Henderson, also competing in the feature event at Empire Stadium June 7, can break the four-minute barrier "on any given day."

"If one man breaks four minutes I wouldn't be surprised if four or five others did likewise," he said. Lincoln didn't refer to himself, but the long-striding Aussie must be included in the list of candidates.

Lincoln also made reference to last Friday's mile event in the Los Angeles relays where Herb Elliott, also an Australian, turned in the second fastest time ever recorded for the mile but was told his run would not be recognized because he was paced.

"My feeling is that a legal time is that recorded by any runner who is dressed in shorts and spikes.

"I feel as John Landy does, that Ibbotson's 3.57.2 should be allowed to stand as a world record."

Both Ibbotson and Elliott (3.57.8) have beaten Landy's time of 3.58.0. Ibbotson's mark has been disallowed because of alleged pacing, and Elliott's has not yet been recognized.

Meanwhile, officials of the two-day Centennial meet have announced that Charlie Jenkins, Villanova University's world champion quarter-miler, will run in the games. The 24-year-old Jenkins, who won a gold medal at the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne, helps make the 440-yard event one of the best races in the meet.

Jenkins will compete against Canada's Terry Tobacco, England's Dr. John Wrighton, England's Stanislaw Swatowski, Jamaica twins Mal and Mel Spence and the University of Nebraska's Maurice Fleming.

Biggest Decline in U.S. Goods

Reduced Imports Cut Trade Deficit

OTTAWA (CP)—A sharp drop in imports has slashed Canada's trade deficit in the first four months of 1958, the bureau of statistics reported yesterday.

During April the deficit fell to $73,100,000 from $161,700,000 last year as exports rose slightly while imports slumped. Most of the decline was in shipments from the United States.

This sharp drop in April's deficit, added to others in previous months, sliced the unfavorable balance to $174,300,000 for the January-April period, less than one-half the $405,300,000 for the similar 1957 period.

April's shipments rose by $4,400,000 to $376,900,000 from $372,500,000 last year while imports fell by $87,200,000 to $450,000,000 from $537,200,000.

Exports from the four months, however, were down by $22,300,000 totalling $1,487,000 compared to $1,491,000,000 last year. Imports tumbled by $253,300,000 to $1,643,000,000 from $1,896,500,000.

Some experts believe the large decline in imports is a reflection of the economic recession. Much of Canada's imports are usually made up of machinery, equipment and other capital goods greatly in demand during boom periods.

Nevertheless the change in pace in trade led to an unusual narrowing of the traditional big Canadian-American trade gap.

Despite federal efforts to boost trade with Britain, there appeared to be no sharp changes so far this year. Exports to Britain dropped in April to $51,800,000 from $54,200,000 and in the four months to $209,800,800 from $215,900,000.

Imports from Britain eased to $50,300,000 from $52,300,000 in the month.

Space Theory 'Proven'—Reds

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said yesterday the carrier rocket of Sputnik III now is leading the artificial satellite by two-tenths of an orbit as they whirl around the earth.

This means that the rocket, which had less initial velocity than the sputnik, is spiralling in toward the earth and will be destroyed by friction with the atmosphere while the satellite is still aloft.

The radio added that Soviet scientists have proved in theory they can send up floating space stations to serve as takeoff points for further travel through the heavens.

The scientists believe such satellites can be put in orbit more than 21,000 miles up, and will zoom through space at about 6,800 miles an hour.

But since they will move in the same direction as the earth and girdle it once every 24 hours they will appear motionless. Thus flights to the cosmic platforms can be made at any time from any spot on earth.

B.C. Waters Claim Three

Boy's 'DeadmanFloat' Was Real Tragedy

HAMMOND (CP)—Three schoolboys watched their swimming companion—Reinhold John Andrews, 15, of Hammond—drown Tuesday in the Alouette River. They thought he was playing "deadman's float."

The three, Stuart Christensen, Joseph Kupkee and Dale Meier, saw Andrews floating on his back 10 feet from the bank. Thinking he was fooling, they went on swimming before discovering the tragedy.

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Cecil Sagert, 11, of Kamloops was drowned Tuesday after a raft on which he was playing near the junction of the North and South Thompson rivers swung out into the stream.

The boy was alone on the raft when the accident occurred.

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP)—Victor Pawliuk, 20, of Surrey, was drowned Tuesday in a boating accident on McCleese Lake, 24 miles north of here.

Pawliuk's boat turned over not far from shore. A companion, Les Lim, of Whalley, managed to swim to shore. Police believe Pawliuk was a non-swimmer.

Small Girl, Matches Set House on Fire

A small Metchosin girl with a penchant for playing with matches caused a fire Tuesday which destroyed a four-room log cabin and almost claimed her own life.

The cabin, unoccupied but containing about $200 worth of furnishings, stood on the property of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Fisher, on Arden Road.

Mrs. Fisher said she was doing the family wash Tuesday when she looked out the window and saw smoke billowing from the windows of the cabin, not far away.

Her two youngest children were in the house, but Mrs. Fisher could not see Darlene, her oldest girl who will be three this summer.

Dashing to the cabin, Mrs. Fisher found Darlene sitting in the middle of a room, watching the building burn around her. The mother snatched the child to safety, then telephoned RCMP and the Metchosin Volunteer Fire Brigade.

The firemen responded immediately, and were joined by a full fire suppression crew from the B.C. Forest Service. Flames had too good a hold on the building to save it but fire started in dry brush by sparks was quelled.

Although Mr. Fisher carried no insurance on the property, he said he understood partial coverage was maintained by the former owner, from whom he took over the property about three months ago.

The Fishers said Darlene had been "caught" playing with matches Monday, and must have found some more next day.

Seven Games Decided By Timely Home Runs

Timely home-run hitting featured all but one of the eight games in the major baseball leagues yesterday with Willie Mays and Minnie Minoso providing the most spectacular of the numerous four-base clouts.

Mays and Minoso both hit theirs in the 12th inning to win for the red-hot San Francisco Giants and Cleveland Indians,

Washington	14	16	.467	9
Detroit	13	19	.406	11
Chicago	11	18	.379	11½

who are almost as much of a surprise in the American League as the Giants are in the National League.

Giants made it 10 wins in their last 11 games and lengthened their lead to two and a half games when Mays connected for his 12th four-baser of the season to edge Cincinnati Redlegs, 5-4.

Minoso's blow beat Boston, 3-2, after the Red Sox had forced extra innings on Jackie Jensen's ninth-inning circuit smash. The win boosted Indians into fourth place although they are still one game below .500.

DODGERS ON MOVE

At Milwaukee, where the Los Angeles Dodgers won their third in a row for the first time this season, outfielder Gino Cimoli was the hero. He hit a two-run homer in the first inning and Don Drysdale, with help from Clem Labine, made it stand up for a 2-1 win over the Braves.

The Braves got to Drysdale for three successive singles in the seventh inning but couldn't score. Wes Covington was thrown out at the plate on the third single, then Labine came in to get the side out by throwing a double play ball to Carl Sawatski.

Outfielder Walt Moryn provided the winning runs at Pittsburgh, where Chicago Cubs beat the Pirates, 5-1. His two-run homer in the third inning broke a 1-1 tie.

Only at Philadelphia, where the Phillies sneaked by St. Louis Cardinals, 1-0, although held to three hits by Sam Jones, were there no home runs. In this one, Robin Roberts won his game with a double as he made his record read 4-4.

YANKS RELENTLESS

New York Yankees, now seven and a half games out in front, used the home-run route to knock off Chicago White Sox, 5-2. Elston Howard connected in the fifth inning after Gil McDougald had singled and McDougald connected in the sixth inning after Tony Kubek and Mickey Mantle had singled.

Whitey Ford made it the 15th complete game out of the 36 played by the Yankees as he snatched his fourth win. Home runs by Jim Landis and Al Smith kept him from notching an eighth shutout for the Yankee pitching staff.

Gus Triandos hit two home runs and Gene Woodling one to do most of the damage as Baltimore Orioles handed Detroit Tigers their seventh loss in a row, 8-1. And Jim Lemon, Norm Zauchin and Ken Aspromonte provided the power with four basers as Washington Senators trimmed Kansas City Athletics, 6-1. Lemon's drive, a tape-measure job, travelled 421 feet.

Weary Rocks Lose To Hustling Pils

By JIM TANG

Victoria Shamrocks proved to 2,054 Memorial Arena fans last night that they are not yet in condition for games on successive nights.

Seeking their third straight win and sole possession of second place, the Shamrocks ran out of legs in the second half and were badly outhustled as Vancouver Pilseners came back from 4-0 and 6-3 deficits for a well-merited 9-7 decision.

Victory broke a three-game losing streak for the Pils, balanced their record for six games, and left them only two points behind the front-running New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Shamrocks, minus Lew Landess, who was working, and Ron Jay and Art Green, Sr., both injured, and with several of their players still battling after effects of the influenza which struck the club just before the season opened, didn't look good last night. That they stayed close, and even led, was due in large measure to the fine goaling of Geordie Johnston and Jackie Northup's persistent play.

Johnston played brilliantly at times, particularly in the first half, and was the difference as the Shamrocks grabbed the lead. He got in front of 29 of 38 shots. Northup, playing as well as he ever has, was a stickout on a club which slowed to a walk after a good start. He got nine of the 24 shots the Rocks managed to take, scored three times, and played a sturdy defensive game.

NOT ENOUGH

But Johnston and Northup weren't enough. The Shamrocks allowed themselves to be pushed around by the younger Pils, got only a small portion of the loose balls and, as usual, failed to come up with the ball often enough on face-offs.

The Victoria club also seemed to have much more difficulty with the slippery floor than the more agile Pils and it is in no way an alibi to say they probably got the worst of it from the hard-to-understand decisions of referees Earl MacDonald and Wally Henderson.

Ever alert, and gaining confidence after a shaky start, the Pils took full advantage of Shamrock mistakes. Trailing by 4-0, and playing shorthanded in the second quarter, the Pils finally beat Johnston when the Rocks got badly outpositioned in their eagerness to get the ball and were caught flatfooted by a three-man break.

MISTAKES COSTLY

And then, with the score knotted at 7-7 starting the final quarter, the Pils got the winning and insurance goals by cashing in on mistakes. Wayne Pecknold got the winning goal, working out of a corner and getting by a tired Pee Wee Bradshaw. Alex Carey got the insurance goal when he stole the ball at mid-floor as Derry Davies tried to make a pass during a Victoria player change.

That goal came at 5:02 and while the Shamrocks had 10 minutes left, they didn't have enough left to start anything resembling a rally and Pils easily ran out the remaining time, holding possession for about eight of the final 10 minutes.

Minus Bill Barbour, their top star who is sitting out a suspension that is still indefinite, the Pils presented a well-balanced club, long on desire and youth if a bit short on individual stars. Pete Black led them last night with three clever goals, the last two starting and capping a third-quarter rally which brought them from 3-6 to 7-6, the first time they were able to get in front.

Probably weakest in goal, where Keith Johnstone played last night in place of Marv Ferguson, the Pils checked tenaciously and gave their netminder good protection. They probably won't be able to quite handle the Salmonbellies or Shamrocks when those two clubs are at the top of their games but the Pils will hustle the points as often as not when the more talent-rich clubs let down. They sure did it last night.

Speaking Briefly

Durelle Easy Winner

Yvon Durelle, Canadian and British Empire light-heavyweight champion from New Brunswick whose chance for a title fight was ruined by Tony Anthony, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Germinal Ballarin of France in a televised bout at Montreal last night.

Making his first start since taking a savage beating from the highly-rated Anthony, Durelle didn't show too much against the elusive, back-pedalling Frenchman although he was never in danger of losing the decision.

Ballarin had a clear-cut margin in only one round—the fifth—when he opened a cut over Durelle's right eye. But through most of the fight, Durelle kept chasing the Frenchman and caught up with him in the ninth, dropping Ballarin to the canvas for a compulsory eight count.

There was plenty of action during the weigh-in. Durelle's contract called for him to weigh in at 175 pounds but the Canadian fisherman couldn't make the weight limit and faces possible punishment from the Montreal Athletic Commission.

Durelle weighed in the first time at 178½ and was a pound heavier at a second weigh in.

Last night's score: Halecos 3, New Westminster 2.

VANCOUVER — Halecos regained first place in the Pacific Coast Summer Soccer League here Wednesday night by edging New Westminster Royals, 3-2, at Callister Park.

Halecos, who went down to their first defeat of the season Monday afternoon when they dropped a 3-1 decision to St. Andrews, piled up a 3-0 half-time lead last night and then held off a New Westminster rally.

Art Hughes and Neil McEachnie again sparked the Haleco attack, Hughes scoring the first two goals and McEachnie setting up two markers. Keith Smith got the third goal for the winners.

Ron Paton put New Westminster on the scoresheet with a goal at nine minutes of the second half. Art Bennett set up Harry Price for the Royals' second goal two minutes later.

Nanaimo City went down to its fifth defeat in six matches at the Island centre Monday afternoon, dropping a 4-3 decision to the Royals. Bennett scored three goals and passed for the winning marker with less than a minute remaining.

Musial Always Remembered Dickie's Encouraging Words

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Stan Musial, at the height of acclaim for his 3,000th hit in major league baseball, has made Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kerr of Houston happy.

The Kerrs moved into a home of their own the other day—a gift from the Musials.

Kerr, 65, was the little left-handed pitcher who won two games for Chicago White Sox in the 1919 world series that produced the Black Sox scandal and one of baseball's darkest hours. He now works for an electric company.

The paths of Kerr and Musial crossed in 1940 at Daytona Beach, Fla., a class D St. Louis Cardinal farm club. Kerr, the club manager, took Musial, a discouraged outfielder-pitcher, and encouraged him to go on playing the outfield and hitting despite an army injury.

The Kerrs took the Musials into their home. The Musials' first child was named Dickie in honor of Kerr and the young man now is getting ready to enter Notre Dame.

The families have been devoted ever since.

"This is the luckiest thing that ever happened to me in my life," Kerr said. "I couldn't be happier."

Kelowna Hockey Club Earns Expenses-Paid Russian Tour

TORONTO (CP) — Kelowna Packers, who lost to Belleville in a tough seven-game Allan Cup final this year, Wednesday were chosen to make an expenses-paid one-week tour of Russia next November.

By an overwhelming 19-4 vote, the British Columbia team received the nod at the concluding session of the five-day Canadian Amateur Hockey Association annual meeting.

Thus the Packers will be the first Canadian hockey team to test the powerful Russians in Soviet territory.

At one time during the proceedings nine clubs were mentioned as possible candidates for the expedition. This eventually was trimmed to five and in the balloting only two teams received votes—the Packers and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

DUNLOPS APPLY

The world champion Whitby Dunlops and Winnipeg Maroons officially tossed their bids into the pot Tuesday and Wednesday owner Ken Soble of Hamilton Tiger Cubs in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series appeared before the meeting to make application for his team.

In another important move, association officials will instruct referees to call the rules according to the book next fall in a Dominion-wide effort to take the rough stuff out of amateur hockey and speed up play.

Prompted by success of the Western Hockey League last year in cleaning up the game and by the style of play shown by the Russians in their eight-game tour of Ontario and Quebec, the CAHA adopted resolutions aimed to eliminate boarding, high sticking, freezing and icing the puck.

What is believed to be an all-time record entry for Vancouver Island has been established in the Victoria and District Centennial Open foursome competition to be played at Royal Colwood Sunday.

Nearly 200 players are taking part, and the team partnerships are composed of all handicap ranges.

It would be a bold man who would hazard a guess at the team which will be the first to win the handsome new Centennial trophy.

In some cases low handicap men have lined up with players of lesser ability, and there are cases of low handicap men and high handicap men sticking together.

Half the combined handicap counts, and there are some who think that Colwood stretched out to its special long tees on several holes will favor the low handicap partnerships. Time will tell.

One powerful team with a handicap of 2½ is that of Bill McColl and Dr. George Bigelow. They will start favorites for the gross prize although there are many other teams who could tip them out of top place. One of them is the pro-amateur combine of Laurie Carroll and Bruce Hopkins—another 2½ handicap rating.

One of the problems for each of the teams to figure out is the order to play off the tees. One player will hit at the odd holes and the other at the evens. The amateur strategists are getting it all worked out.

The committee which made the draw this week decided that in the event of a tie for the Centennial Trophy those tying for first place will play off over the first three holes as soon as all the cards are returned. One-sixth of the team's handicap will be used for the extra holes. For all other prizes, ties will be balloted.

First team tees off at 8.15 and it is hoped to complete the prize giving ceremonies before 5 o'clock.

MAY BE ANNUAL VISIT — The sponsors of the Stan Leonard-Al Balding B.C. tour—they are due to play in Victoria at Gorge Vale on Friday, June 13—are hoping to make the appearance of these two crack Canadian professionals an annual affair.

The match at Gorge Vale starts at 4 p.m. and is one of five being played in the province. Other games will be played at Kamloops, Kelowna, Penticton and Vancouver.

FINAL TO BE REPEATED—Finalists for the second year in succession in the "A" championship of the Victoria Golf Club are George Bigelow and Jim Barry.

George is attempting to win the club title for the ninth time while Jim, who was a winner two years ago, is playing to make it two.

In last year's final Bigelow shot a first-round 66, and was still four under par when the match finished in his favor. Barry, although playing close to par throughout the day, had little chance against the redoubtable doctor, but he put up a fine fight and this year's final should produce another fine game.

In the semi-finals Bigelow with a 69 beat George Sparling (72) by two holes while Barry beat young Alan Manson by 3 and 2.

In the Victoria Club "B" championship medalist Ed Godewill has reached the semi-final and will meet the winner of the Reg Wilde-Graham Chambers game. The other semi-finalists are Ken Stephenson and Don Wagg.

NANAIMO CENTENNIAL NEXT—Entries are now being taken for the Mid-Island Centennial (Zone 1) tournament at Nanaimo on June 14 and 15.

Eighteen holes will be played on each day, and to avoid overcrowding the limit entry is being set at 120. Sixty players will tee off each morning and the remainder in the afternoons. Handicap limit is 14. Entry fee is $5 and entries close June 6.

Special centennial prizes in addition to the regular Mid-Island and Zone 1 trophies are being offered to the value of $750.

A special invitation is accorded to players from the Victoria clubs.

Rolling a perfect 300 game in the American Bowling Congress tournament at Syracuse, N.Y., Tuesday, Ed Shay of Chester, Pa., stepped into the singles lead with a 733 total. Shay, who's perfect score came after games of 210 and 223, is the 15th bowler in the 55-year history of the ABC tournament to roll a 300 game.—(AP photofax.)

Duren Saves the Day As Yank's Relief Ace

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, a great pitcher with the New York Yankees through the '30s and into the '40s, had a ready answer when somebody once asked him why he quit pitching.

"I had to," he grinned. "Johnny Murphy's arm gave out."

Gomez, also known as "Goofy," wasn't being zany when he made that reply. For Murphy was a great relief pitcher whose ability to come out of the bull pen and save games for tiring starters played a major part in forging the Yankee legend.

The relief pitcher, on the whole, is the unsung hero of baseball. But give a team a good one and the pennant prospects are brightened perceptibly.

Which brings us to Rinold (Ryne) Duren, the 29-year-old flame thrower who already has saved six games for the Yankees this season as of Tuesday.

NEAR-SIGHTED

Duren is a six foot, two-inch 200-pounder who throws the ball with blazing speed. Compounding his effectiveness, he is near-sighted. This means that, when he squints through glasses which look like two lenses from the Mt. Palomar telescope, the batters take a very wary toehold.

Being extremely wild kept him out of the majors for years. It is no fable that he hit two men waiting in the on-deck circle while he was in the Texas league. His teammates call him "Mister Magoo," after the cartoon character who walks into brick walls, although Ryne claims "I can see a hundred dollar bill as quick as anybody."

But his inability to find the plate, whether he could see it, or not, made his journey to the big time a long one. His travels carried him to such baseball waystations as Wausau, Pine Bluff, Dayton, Anderson, Scranton, San Antonio, Baltimore, Seattle, Vancouver, Kansas City and Denver.

REUNITED AGAIN

Once he was up with the old St. Louis Browns, along with a pair named Bob Turley and Don Larsen. Now they are reunited again, the Yankees getting Duren in the Billy Martin deal with Kansas City last June and then farming him out to Denver for a refresher course until this spring. Now his speed has brought him up again, with references to new control.

"He's faster than Joe Page," lauds catcher Yogi Berra, referring to another great Yankee relief pitcher.

Ryne has saved six games for the Yankees, Bobby Shantz being his chief beneficiary with three wins on Duren's relief talents. He also has rushed to the winning aid of Tom Sturdivant, Whitey Ford and Sal Maglie.

And he has retained just enough wildness. In 9⅔ innings he has allowed only six hits and one run while striking out 14. But don't overlook those seven walks. That's what keeps the hitters wary. "Mister Magoo," it is obvious, didn't learn too much. Just enough.

Four American Riders Enter 100-Mile Race

Portland will be represented in the 100-mile centennial bicycle race from Qualicum to Victoria on June 7.

Frank Powell, Sam Kutson and Tom Miller Wednesday submitted entries for the race down Vancouver Island for a first prize of a trip to the 1958 world amamteur cycling championships in Reims, France.

The Portland trio, and Tom Sparks of Los Angeles boosted the U.S. contingent in the race to seven. Earlier entries had been submitted by Gary Lund, Washington State champion, and Miles Jordan of Seattle, and Franz S. Von Berghammer, former German rider who now resides in Corona del Mar, Calif.

Held as a companion event to the 100-mile chase will be a novice race from Duncan to Victoria, which offers a first prize of a trip to the 1958 baseball world series.

The Qualicum-Victoria run is open to all amateur riders while the novice event is limited to B.C. riders who either have no previous racing experience or who will be under 16 on June 7.

Youbou Angler Leads in Race For Top Trout Division Prize

Ray Roch of Youbou took the lead among subscribers in the trout section of The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest on Monday when he weighed in a seven-pounder at Sunset Auto Park in Lake Cowichan.

Roch made his catch near Wardroper Rock in Lake Cowichan while fishing with a small Strip-Teaser. If his seven-pounder is still largest caught by a subscriber when the contest ends on Oct. 15, Roch stands to win a Jeubro tent and two dacron-filled sleeping bags donated by Jeune Brothers.

Biggest trout weighed in to date is a nine-and-a-half-pounder caught earlier this month in Cowichan Lake by Ollie Johnston. But Johnston, a new resident of Victoria, was not a Colonist subscriber and can only win the King Fisherman Trophy.

Both anglers, of course, are certain to win one of the 25 crests given each month for the largest fish in each of the five separate sections—trout, small-mouth black bass, and spring, coho and tyee salmon.

DISCOVER BEAUTIFUL B.C. THIS CENTENNIAL YEAR

Roam the romantic Cariboo and see the West as it was!

Progress – development – expansion – these are the words that tell the world of the goings-on in our Province.

But time has played a delightful trick by standing still in the Cariboo. And for that, every visitor is grateful. For here you can live in the Old West again, following the footprints of the pioneers and the prospectors.

From Ashcroft and Lillooet in the south up to Prince George in the northern part, the Cariboo country is dry and high, with cactus and sage, with prairie and hill and lake, with real ranches and dude ranches.

All the old sights are here: cattle ranges, old trail hotels, old timers who tell tall tales around the evening campfires. But best of all, the Cariboo can give you a new view of B.C. – rolling range plateaux, spectacular canyons, parklike wooded sections. Here, fish and shoot and camp out, or live a vacation life of comfort and ease, with the whinny of a spirited horse or the chuck wagon dinner bell as the only sounds to disturb your rest.

Roam the Cariboo this year – go by car, bus, train or plane. And come in time to see the special Centennial events, too: parades and picnics, banquets and barbecues, fairs and rodeos. Ask this newspaper for the newest programme of Centennial events in the Cariboo – and get ready for a holiday of fun and relaxation in British Columbia's Old West!

MAYOR SCURRAH

Busy Signal from Ottawa — Island Crisis Ignored

'It's an Insult,' Cries Angry Mayor

Diefenbaker, Hees Blasted by Scurrah

By R. O. MARRION

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and members of his cabinet have insulted the people of Greater Victoria an angry Mayor Percy Scurrah said yesterday.

On instructions of a citizens meeting Friday the mayor started immediately to try to reach the prime minister and Transport Minister Hees by telephone to ask for federal intervention in the CPR ferry tie-up.

He kept on trying through the holiday weekend. Closest he came to speaking to the prime minister, he said yesterday, was when he was told Mr. Diefenbaker was in conference and couldn't be disturbed.

Tuesday he sent a telegram saying he would be deeply grateful if Mr. Diefenbaker would telephone at his own convenience. Last night he had received no reply.

"I consider this an affront to the people of the capital city of B.C. that the prime minister and all other ministers I have tried to contact have ignored our representations completely," Mayor Scurrah said.

"The prime minister appears to lack an appreciation [illegible]

Company Offers 8-Per-Cent Boost

Final Ballot Friday On Black Ball Strike

Two of Three Unions Now Favor Walkout

By DAVID FRANCIS

Wage disputes, which have already put the CPR's B.C. Coast Steamships out of operation, are threatening to sever another ferry link to the mainland—the Black Ball service between Nanaimo and Horseshoe Bay.

* * *

New developments in the tangled picture reported yesterday were:

1. Some 40 members of the National Association of Marine Engineers of Canada have voted approximately 90 per cent in favor of a strike against Black Ball Ferries.

2. About 40 members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, Inc., the masters and deck officers' union, have also voted to strike against Black Ball.

3. A government supervised strike vote is under way among 150 members of the Seafarers' International Union employed by Black Ball with results expected Friday.

4. Black Ball Ferries Ltd. during negotiations in Vancouver yesterday offered wage increases of approximately 8 per cent to all three unions, the Colonist learned.

UNDER CONSIDERATION

The offer is under consideration by the union, but was not likely to be accepted, [illegible]

[illegible]

NOW TAKING VOTE

[illegible]

FROM $300 TO $525

Engineers' existing pay varies from $300 to $525 a month.

[illegible]

Both Capt. Meadows and Mr. Greaves complained that the CPR gave their members only 48 hours notice of being laid off.

Many of these men have more than 30 years seniority with the company and are not eligible for unemployment insurance, they said.

CPR Claim

'Flimflam' Union Reply

A CPR statement that it might be economically impossible to reinstate the strike-bound steamship service along the B.C. coast was labelled yesterday an attempt to demoralize union membership and flim-flam the public.

The "dire consequences" threatened by the company have gone over with union membership "like a lead balloon," said Norman Cunningham, business agent of the Seafarers' International Union.

"The CPR is 100 per cent responsible for the plight the citizens of Victoria find themselves in today," he said.

$233 A MONTH

Mr. Cunningham took to his statement that the average pay of a seaman was $233 a month, the pay of a deck petty officer with overtime at $1.50 an hour.

[illegible] vice-president of the CPR's Pacific region said the average earnings were $289 a month.

In addition he said each employee is provided board and lodging on the ships at company's expense.

An SIU delegation of three headed by Walter Say, [illegible], called on Mayor Percy Scurrah Tuesday to correct a statement attributed to the mayor that a man had to be a member of the union two years before he could vote in the strike ballot.

"POPPYCOCK"

That's a lot of poppycock, Mr. Say said.

The delegates also held that their present wage scale is "fantastically low" and that their demands are not "ridiculous."

Mayor Scurrah said later that he disagreed with the delegates on the matter of demands and termed them "unrealistic."

Table Item— Strawberry Season On

First local strawberries of the season, two full crates, were picked yesterday at the Cordova Bay Road farm of William Mattick.

Mr. Mattick said the crop appears good, although some rain is required. Heavy picking is expected to begin by early June. A shortage of pickers is expected.

This Line Real Busy

Kingpin in the current Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada Victoria branch drive for $2,000 is Mrs. Susan Marsh, 1180 Munro, who has collected $300 by telephone alone. Mrs. Marsh, confined to a wheelchair, is the area's highest single collector. She is being assisted by Mrs. O. H. Lamont, chairman of the Victoria branch.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Emergency Rally Called on Strike

An emergency meeting of Prince [illegible] Victoria Chamber of Commerce and other [illegible] will be held Monday to discuss the CPR strike and attempt to find some way to end it.

"We have had telephone call after telephone call on this business," Arnold Webb, secretary-manager of the Chamber, said last night.

[illegible]

"I think the only thing which will break this strike is public opinion," he said.

Special meeting to be held in the [illegible] Gardens at 2 p.m. [illegible]

Royal Oak Cemetery Visits Made Easier

Victorians who would like to visit graves of relatives at Royal Oak Cemetery, and who are elderly, infirm, or lack transportation, will soon get help from a newly formed service club.

Members of Sertoma International, under chairmanship of G. C. Belcher, have almost completed arrangements to have one or more buses run from the city to Royal Oak and return each Sunday afternoon.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning Mr. Belcher at 2-1532 or 2-2848, and later details will be published in this newspaper.

'Generosity' Challenged

[illegible]

... compare it with assistance given by the governments in other provinces.

[illegible]

All Ideas Welcomed

Education Minister Leslie Peterson put Greater Victoria council members and school trustees on the spot yesterday.

Recently they passed a resolution asking in part that the provincial government review the school curriculum.

Replying, Mr. Peterson pointed out that a royal commission had been appointed to study the education system.

"It would be greatly appreciated," he added, "if they would submit concrete complaints with recommendations for improvements to the Royal commission or this office."

Council, Merchants Clash — Ratepayers Undecided

'Bureaucrat-Choked' Saanich Split on Closing

By TED SHACKLEFORD

While Saanich council and Saanich merchants battle out the question of closing hours, Saanich residents polled yesterday by The Daily Colonist are fairly evenly divided.

[illegible]

The merchants want hours left as they are.

Comments:

Carl Farris, [illegible] Donald: "I am inclined to think myself that the bureaucrats are choking us to death. If a fellow wants to stay open let him. If we are supposed to be living under capitalism for God's sake let's have it and not a half bred monstrosity such as we have now."

[illegible]

Mrs. George Grandy, [illegible]: "The hours suit me as they are now. It doesn't make any difference."

Heavy Trade Brings Gains At Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market posted its heaviest trading in two weeks was higher on all sections Wednesday.

Loblaw Inc. climbed 5½ points to 101 on a company report showing last year's earnings were up almost $1.50 to $10.09 a share.

Union Gas gained four points at 80½ on an announcement of a 5-for-1 stock split. Brazilian Traction moved ahead ¾ point at 6[illegible].

Senior mines were mainly responsible for the base metals increase with Steep Rock, Noranda and Hudson Bay ahead fractions.

Western oils were hit by a little profit taking in the final hour and their index dropped back one-half point from its high of the day. Fractional winners were Home Oil A and B, Calgary and Edmonton and Canadian Husky.

Home Oil Rises

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges were still gaining strength at closing time Wednesday.

With the exception of the utilities where the trend was down, the industrials advanced.

Gainers included Home Oil A up 1 to a new high of 20.

Losers included Trans Mountain Pipeline off 2¾ to 96¼.

Western oils and producing mines were also on the upside. Bailey Selburn A climbed 40 cents to a new high of 9.70 and McIntyre was up ⅜ of a point at 81¼.

Strength in Rails

NEW YORK (UP)—Strength in railroad shares and special issues stood out in an irregular active market.

Gains in rails ranged to more than 2 points. The specials had advances running to 3 points.

Steels turned irregular with the exception of a few strong spots. Oils moved higher but lost part of their rise. Most of the aircrafts held in a narrow area. So did autos and chemicals. Tobaccos were irregular. Metals had several good gainers.

National theatres turned active late in the day with a single sale of 50,000 shares and Trans Lux had one of 10,000 shares. Shipbuilding issues ruled strong.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (CP)—The feeling on the London stock market was slightly better but operators were still reluctant to extend commitments and business was rather limited.

An exception was South African gold shares where prices advanced on a broad front despite occasional profit-taking.

Most other mining markets were firm. Dollar stocks were marked higher.

Gilt-edged securities improved on small investment demand. Industrials were quiet. The miscellaneous leaders were mostly better and oil shares advanced.

Canadian Shares Seem Solid

Steel Long-Term Project

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Holders of shares in Canada's steel companies may be interested to know that one of New York's leading investment survey firms thinks that these shares present a long-term growth opportunity that is hard to match within the counterpart U.S. industry.

The Value Line Survey says that the Canadian steel industry has been less affected than the U.S. by the business recession, and it does not expect any one of the six firms—Algoma, Dominion Steel and Coal, Steel Company of Canada, Atlas Steel, Page Hersey and Dominion Foundries and Steel—to cut its dividend rate this year and it expects Stelco and Page Hersey to pay increased dividends by 1959.

American investors have neglected Canadian steel stocks because of the comparative small size of the industry, less than five per cent of the U.S. total, high price-earnings ratio and low yield, and Value Line thinks this has resulted in the loss of a desirable investment opportunity.

Reasons are that the Canadian steel industry is less cyclical than the U.S.'s, and that the Canadian growth has been much faster than south of the border.

The comparative steadiness of Canadian steel stocks is held due to the fact that Canada is [illegible] only able to produce 60 to 70 per cent of the domestic requirements, and the rest has to be imported.

Value Line says that when Canadian demand for steel drops the foreign suppliers are the first to have their orders cut, and this has the effect of cushioning the blow for the home producers.

As Canadian authorities do not expect the Canadian steel industry to supply more than 85 per cent of [illegible] before 1980 this condition is expected to continue as a stabilizing factor for Canadian steel companies for a considerable period.

On the other hand, Value Line is not one of those which believes that Canada is going to snap out of the current recession more quickly than the U.S. It believes that the U.S. steel industry [illegible] March, but that the low in Canadian industry made its low point last [illegible] ada is not likely to be experienced until the September quarter.

Fifteen Bell machines and one Sikorsky S-55 are to be operated by Okanagan in NWT, the Yukon, northern B.C. and northern Alberta, according to company officials.

Shell will use six Bells, Standard of California four Bells and one Sikorsky, Imperial Oil three Bells and Sinclair Oil and Triad Oil one Bell each.

BRAZIL THINKS AGAIN

Unconfirmed rumors that the Brazilian government was considering more generous exchange rates on dividends being paid to non-resident shareholders in Brazilian companies had the effect yesterday of strengthening the stock of Brazilian Traction Light and Power.

Substantial blocks of these shares were sold on the New York stock exchange during the day causing a price jump of nearly half a point.

U.S. Money Taking Canada Out of Red

DETROIT (BUP)—Increased United States investment capital is helping Canada to change from a debtor nation to a creditor status, just as British money once did for the U.S., Herbert Lank, president of Du Pont Company of Canada Ltd., said Wednesday.

"Such is Canada's legitimate aspiration and she is working hard to achieve it," Lank told the National Association of Credit Men's convention.

Quoting from the Royal Commission on Canada's economic prospects, Lank said that what Canada needs is an "indivisable package of money, technology, skills and markets. It is this kind of package which non-residents have provided."

He stressed that money alone was not enough to develop Canada in a way which will utilize its resources to the fullest. It also needs men of ability and vision to set up the industries.

Canada Imports Less To Cut Trade Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — A sharp drop in imports has slashed Canada's trade deficit in the first four months of 1958, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday.

During April the deficit fell to $73,100,000 from $161,900,000 last year as exports rose slightly while imports slumped. Most of the decline was in shipments from the United States.

This sharp drop in April's deficit, added to others in previous months, sliced the unfavorable balance to $174,300,000 for the January-April period, less than one-half the $405,500,000 for the similar 1957 period.

April's shipments rose by $4,100,000 to $376,900,000 from $372,800,000 last year while imports fell by $87,200,000 to $450,000,000 from $537,200,000.

Exports from the four months however were down by $22,800,000 totalling $1,468,700,000 compared to $1,491,000,000 last year. Imports tumbled by $253,000,000 to $1,643,000,000 from $1,896,000,000.

TRADE GAP NARROWS

In April, Canada's deficit in American trade dropped to $86,600,000 from $161,200,000 last year. In the first four months it dropped to $292,300,000 from $532,500,000.

Despite federal efforts to boost trade with Britain, there appeared to be no sharp changes so far this year. Exports to Britain dropped in April to $51,500,000 from $54,200,000 and in the four months to $209,800,000 from $215,900,000.

Imports from Britain eased to $50,300,000 from $52,300,000 in the month. They totalled $166,300,000 in the January-April period, virtually unchanged from last year.

Canada usually has a large surplus in U.K. trade. The surplus dropped to $1,500,000 from $1,900,000 in the month and to $43,500,000 from $43,800,000 in the four months.

Gold Miners Ask Higher Subsidies

OTTAWA (CP)—There were indications Wednesday the government plans to boost gold mining subsidies this year.

One source said an announcement may be made when the budget is brought down next month.

The government has said it will extend the subsidy which expires Dec. 31, for another two years.

A delegation representing goldmining communities recently asked Finance Minister Donald Fleming to boost aid or provide a higher price for gold.

The yellow metal has been pegged at $35 an ounce U.S. funds since 1934. The U.S., main power in setting world prices, has rejected appeals for a price boost.

The existing subsidy amounting to about $9,000,000 a year is available to mines with production costs exceeding $26.50 an ounce but not above $45. It amounts to two-thirds of the production cost exceeding $26.50 with a maximum payment of $12.33 an ounce. Payments are limited to two-thirds of a mine's output.

U.S. Firm Seeks Gas Under Erie

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — The first off-shore drilling for gas on the American side of Lake Erie began Wednesday. The venture could mean millions of dollars for Pennsylvania.

The well site is in the southeast corner of a 19,130 acre tract leased by the New York State Natural Gas Corporation of Pittsburgh from the State of Pennsylvania.

A huge drilling platform standing 30 feet above Lake Erie water level was put into position earlier this week. The well is expected to be completed in about 90 days.

Drilling on the Canadian side of the lake dates back to 1913. At last count 78 wells had been drilled in Lake Erie on the Canadian side.

Haircuts Promote Health

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I was thinking just the other day what a fine co-operative and trouble free plant we have in Aubretia, and I don't know how we would ever get along without it for clothing our rock gardens and dry walls. The display this spring has been unusually good as if the plants were making a special effort for centennial year but such [illegible] hausting for the plants and it is about time something was done about it.

The first step in the rejuvenation of the plants is to take a sharp pair of scissors and clip them back hard, shaping each specimen to a neat, hemispherical tuft. Don't be half-hearted about the job. Aubretias enjoy a good haircut and they'll soon demonstrate it by sending out a lot of healthy side shoots which will give a second display of bloom later in the season.

It is only fair, after such prolific blooming, that the plants be given an extra generous feed following their haircut. This may be liquid manure or "Planter's Punch" soluble high-test fertilizer in water, although with this particular plant I prefer to make up a special feed consisting of coarse sand and Vigoro one cupful of the fertilizer to one bucketful of sand. After thorough mixing, I make the rounds of my Aubretia plants dumping a good double handful into the heart of each clump, plus a bit more around the edges.

You get a two-way action out of such a mixture. The fertilizer provides nutrients, while the sand creates a texture favorable to the formation of new roots.

If you need a few more clumps of Aubretia to fill up the odd blank spot in the rock garden or dry wall this is a good time to lift and divide a few plants. Moisten the soil first, pry up with a hand fork, and separate the clump by pulling it to pieces with the fingers.

Make sure each tuft has a fair share of roots attached and replant the pieces where you want them to bloom, enriching each pocket of soil with a little bone meal and peat moss first.

A lot of rhubarb plants around town seem to think that they, too, should put on a display of bloom for [illegible] stalks are shooting up in many a back yard rhubarb clump.

This is not at all a good sign, and such premature bloom is almost certainly an indication of some unhappiness of the roots. Rhubarb in common with many other plants responds to a feeling of insecurity by making frantic efforts to perpetuate the race by flowering and setting seed.

The rhubarb may be feeling run down and under par through lack of sleep. This plant needs some solid freezing in winter to induce complete dormancy, and it didn't get much frost this past winter. Or it could be that such early flowering clumps have exhausted their soil and are due to be lifted, divided and replanted in fresh enriched soil. This is not the time of year to do the job, but such plants should be earmarked to be shifted into new quarters this fall.

Guilt in Grey Flannel

[illegible] Gamble and Robinson [illegible] considered [illegible] able, honest, hard working, [illegible] hard drinking and as you probably guess the ad guys were a lot harder on themselves [illegible] psychologist who has among his 11 patients seven advertising men.

What's the chief cause for anxiety among the ad fraternity, the sawbones was asked. His answer was both illuminating and in a gory way, hilarious.

"There don't seem to be clear-cut channels of responsibility, so they have a tough time making decisions. Executives in other businesses don't seem to worry as much about a decision they make to it and stick to it more.

I have a patient from the garment centre who's a partner in a big firm. Last year he decided on a revolutionary new way for making button holes. He and his partner invested $30,000 in the new machines.

"The process flopped. My patient and his partner lost a big chunk of money but he wasn't unduly worried. He'd made a decision and stuck to it. But within two weeks after his advertising campaign was launched, the president of his agency became a patient of mine.

"I think he felt guilty because the money he lost wasn't his. When he was a little boy, he used to play marbles. He told me about one time when he'd lost all his marbles. He didn't cry, he wanted to go on playing. So he got his younger brother to lend him all of his marbles. Within an hour he'd lost them too. Then he cried.

And that, friends, is where the expression "He's lost all his marbles" came from. It's a little frightening, isn't it, when you get to thinking that behind every ad campaign there may be some secret neurosis. I mean a guy gets locked in a closet as a child and 25 years later we get the flip-top box.

* * *

You know what the client is to the agency man? A father image. "Not only does he have ultimate authority such as final okay on copy approach but he 'doles out the allowance' that is he controls the budget. It's logical, therefore, that a lot of the repressed conflicts an agency man may have had with his father are transferred onto the client."

And that's the big trauma picture at the moment, men. Let's lay it on the couch and see if it can make a social adjustment.

Hollywood Today By Sheilah Graham

Elizabeth Turns Producer

HOLLYWOOD — Elizabeth Taylor is considering a non-exclusive contract at Metro. She had agreed to make "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" which is expected to be a blockbuster [illegible] would end her long-time stay at the studio. Then she was going to retire after "Don Quixote" for husband Mike Todd. But with Mike's death, she has had to change her plans which now include co-producing with Mike, Jr., a comedy her husband bought several years ago.

Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti have been informed they can go back to Italy, providing they do not live together as husband and wife. In Italy, they still regard the divorced Ponti, who proxy-wed Sophia in Mexico, as married to his previous wife.

Eight-year-old Terry Rooney is taking lessons at Metro from the same teacher, Miss Mary MacDonald, who taught his old man, and I do mean Mickey.

Tough-guy Jimmy Cagney has joined the warblers on wax, an album of the songs he sings in "Never Steal Anything Small."

* * *

And while we're at Universal-International, they may change the studio name to the Stork Club. Four stars in recent U-I pictures have had or are expecting babies — Janet Leigh, Shirley Jones, Mara Corday and Debbie Reynolds.

Sammy Davis, Jr. and his short term wife, Loray White, have separated again, probably for good this time.

With 14 points in a balanced hand North was correct to respond two no-trump in spite of his strength in partner's suit and his use of a sure diamond stopper. The losing three no-trump contract was easily avoided when South's heart rebid [illegible] South's showing his spade support.

In order to take a spade finesse without delay, South ruffed the first club in his hand. The finesse of the queen lost to East's king and the club return forced out dummy's ace. South discarding a diamond. Declarer came to his hand with the ace of hearts to lead another spade. West showed out, discarding a diamond, and dummy took the ace. The king of hearts dropped West's jack and declarer was making five-odd in spite of the bad trump break. He cashed two good hearts, discarding a diamond from dummy, then led two top diamonds planning to ruff the third with dummy's eight of spades.

All would have been well had the second round of diamonds lived. But East trumped, cashed the jack of spades and left South holding the losing diamond that cost his his contract.

There were several ways for South to play this hand. Best perhaps would be to ruff the second club lead, holding onto dummy's ace until South knew more about the trump situation. But instead of figuring on an extra trick, South should have taken alarm when West dropped the jack of hearts. With East counted for length in hearts and spades there was danger he would prove short in diamonds. East follows and South makes the king. Then instead of discarding a diamond on the fourth heart declarer should ruff his own trick in order to lead a second diamond from dummy. If East follows or discards, South makes his second diamond and is sure to make another trump trick. If East trumps the second diamond, he wastes his trump on declarer's small diamond and the only other trick he can make is his high spade.

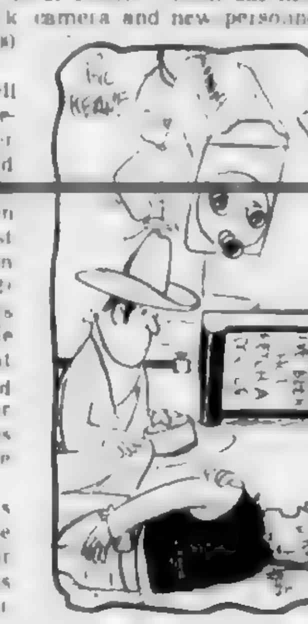
TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

CHEK-TV hopes to have a "remote operation" for live telecasts of major local events within six months but the microwave truck camera and new personnel involved will cost $100,000 or more.

Manager Russell Furse made the statement after this writer asked why CHEK did [illegible] Day parade live when there was great interest and other channels in this area (notably 12) have done local parades live for some time. The answer was mainly that CHEK could not afford the cost while other channels can, but hopes to be able to show the 1959 parade.

Mr. Furse also was asked why the parade film was of such poor quality; his answer was that response of other viewers to the film was [illegible] favorable. The 30-minute film of the parade, biggest and best in the city's history, will be repeated at 7 p.m. Monday.



"I've been shot . . . fetch a doctor . . ."

TV BITS: Two major shows tonight: a Rod Serling play called "Bomber's Moon" on Playhouse 90 and a CBC Folio musical called "Dreamstreet" and featuring Shirley Harmer. There's another Eisenhower speech this morning: best movie is "In Which We Serve."

First rating report in some time on the Sunday at eight battle shows Maverick and Ed Sullivan about even and Steve Allen trailing. All three have been renewed for another season, but while Maverick and Sullivan are sold out, only Greyhound of his current three sponsors is staying with Allen. . . . BBC will market in the U.S. a TV series called Rendezvous 127 in which Anna Neagle portrays Mme Brusselmans, a Belgian who spirited 180 Allied fliers to safety during World War Two. . . . Omnibus is thinking of filming its version of Owen Wister's "The Virginian," with Tony Perkins, in Spain to save money.

There's a chance that Climax, due to end on CBS next month, may move to NBC next fall. . . . Alcoa-Goodyear Theatre next season will change format to become a standard drama series. The present five rotating stars, David Niven, Charles Boyer, Jane Powell, Jack Lemmon and Robert Ryan, will appear only occasionally. . . . Don't forget Sid Caesar does his last show this season next Sunday. . . . Claude Rains is to star in a TV mystery series. . . . A secret service show called Silent Sabre is in the works. . . . Writers Guild of America has in its new two-year contract a clause giving writers extra money if a TV series is cancelled early because of critical panning.

School Board's Anxious

'What's Going On?'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver school board Tuesday authorized its treasurer to borrow $1,000,000 after being told that a department of education payment due May 15 has not arrived from Victoria.

"We don't know what's going on over there," said board chairman George Robson.

The board voted approval for the loan in order to be sure there will be enough money to pay teachers' salaries. No notice has been received of when the government cheque will arrive.

Socialized Phones, Power Top CCF Resolutions

Resolutions calling for the expropriation of the B.C. Electric and the B.C. Telephone companies will top the list at the annual CCF convention in Vancouver May 30 and 31 and June 1.

A total of 132 resolutions has been submitted by CCF constituency organizations throughout the province.

There are four urging that a CCF government take over the B.C. Telephone Company, adding the result would mean lower rates to B.C. residents and also a source of extra revenue for other government expenditures, notably social welfare.

Public power ownership in the province is recommended in three other resolutions. It is stated that B.C. consumers have to pay "exorbitant prices" of more than double the rates now in effect in Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba.

A resolution from Delta asks that a CCF government take over the B.C. Power Corporation, the controlling body of the B.C. Electric, for both electrical and natural gas distribution.

In another resolution the price of natural gas charged by the B.C. Electric is "condemned."

There are four resolutions on the subject of automobile insurance and one, from North Vancouver, urges that a CCF government "provide insurance at cost."

It was pointed out that in five years the provincial government had saved $400,000 by insuring its own vehicles and that on the same basis B.C. residents would save $12,000,000 a year in premiums if automobile insurance was operated by the provincial government.

Among other resolutions is one declaring that "the first task of the CCF government is to rebuild the provincial civil service to a proper standard . . ." and another calling for a yearly three-week paid vacation after five years with the same firm.

CCF Leader Robert Strachan said yesterday that the "theme" of this year's convention would be preparing the ground for the next provincial election, expected in 1960.

16 Resignations 'Customary' Loss

Resignation of 16 Greater Victoria school teachers was termed "customary for this time of year," by school board education committee chairman W. C. Thomson at the board meeting Monday.

"No more than in other years," board chairman Mrs. W. W. McGill remarked.

The board is currently seeking to resolve a salary dispute with teachers in the district and is one of the few remaining districts in the province still held "unsettled" by the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

Appointment of David Jones, vice-principal of the South Park School, to principal of the new Lake Hill School and of Joseph T. Ross, Oaklands vice-principal, as principal of the new Marigold School, was approved by the board.

The appointments were made on the understanding the two "will continue to work toward qualifying themselves for higher certification."

Five retiring teachers will be honored at a tea given by the Greater Victoria School Board at Craigdarroch June 20, it was announced by the board.

Names of the five will not be made known until "later," the announcement said.

Charter Meeting Monday

Rotarians Form New City Group

A new Rotary club will be welcomed into the world-wide service organization at a special charter meeting Monday.

Recently granted a charter the new Rotary unit is the Rotary Club of Douglas (Victoria). President is Oliver Prentice and secretary Robert P. Macmillan.

The new Victoria club is one of the latest in a far-flung Rotary organization that now includes some 450,000 business and professional executives in 9,808 clubs in 108 countries.

The long-established Rotary Club of Victoria is planning a program to welcome the new Douglas group into the organization.

Chief community project of the senior club is the Goodwill Enterprises for the handicapped now in operation at 560 Yates to provide gainful employment for many who would otherwise be ordinarily considered unemployable.

More than $12,000 has been contributed to the Goodwill project to date by the Victoria Rotary.

Distribution of special collection bags to householders for contributions of used clothing and other articles to Goodwill for renovation and sale will be made Friday.

Teams of Rotarians in cars will cover five residential zones distributing the bags. Contributors are asked to place articles in the bags for later pickup by Goodwill.

Boy Scout volunteers will aid Rotary members in the distribution of the collection bags.

Renovation and sale of used articles at the 560 Yates premises provides the chief source of income for the Goodwill Enterprises where, it is hoped, as many as 100 handicapped may eventually be provided with paid jobs.

Hertel Committed For Assize Trial

PAUL HERTEL

Attendant Tells Court How Zoo Lion Escaped

NANAIMO — Paul Hertel, owner and operator of a zoo at Wellington just north of Nanaimo, will go for trial before a judge and jury, probably at the next fall assizes in Nanaimo.

Hertel was committed for trial following a preliminary hearing in Nanaimo court yesterday.

NOT GUILTY PLEA

He pleaded not guilty to unlawfully causing the death of Maureen Vanstone by criminal negligence, by omitting to keep a lioness properly secured.

Hertel relaxed comfortably in the prisoner's box as crown prosecutor E. D. Strongitharm built up his case.

Magistrate Harold Hine refused to accept an appeal for dismissal from defence counsel Ronald F. MacIsaac, who contended that there was no prima facie case established against the accused.

ATTENDANT'S STORY

Waldemar Jungenkrueger, who received the protection of the Canada Evidence Act, was in the witness box for nearly two hours. He was the attendant at the zoo from which the lioness escaped.

Jungenkrueger related how the lioness had got out of its cage while he was placing water in the lions' trough at about 5 p.m. May 2. He said he grabbed it by its tail in a futile attempt to stop it.

SAW DOOR OPEN

Witness stated he had secured the door after entering the cage, but turned around to see the door open, and the lioness going through.

"Had the lioness ever escaped before in the manner in which it did that afternoon?" asked crown counsel.

"It did once before, a year ago," answered Jungenkrueger.

"How long was it out?"

"About 10 minutes, maybe less," replied the witness.

Barry Smith, 20, of Dove Creek, and his 16-year-old girl friend, Dorothy Gudmundson, related how they had visited the zoo at about 3 p.m. May 2.

They entered the lions' cage to have their photographs taken by the attendant Jungenkrueger.

"CAME OUT OFTEN"

When they were leaving the cage, Smith said, the attendant called a lioness by name. He said it sounded like "Fury."

Jungenkrueger, he said, had told them that "it came out quite often."

"It went over to the door and jumped past it and outside. It went up a path for about 100 feet."

CHASED GOATS

He said the attendant turned it around and stationed the young couple at the other end of the path. "It didn't go in the cage, it went past us, then took off after some goats about 100 feet away," said the youth.

Smith claimed the lioness attacked two goats. "It jumped on one goat and had hold of its back with its mouth." He said the attendant hit it "with a piece of two-by-four" and scared it off.

WARNING GIVEN

He said that Hertel had told him to "be more careful."

When the lioness escaped a second time, he said he "hollered" to Hertel. "We tried to get her in the same way as we got the other one in, but she somehow didn't want to go in . . ."

Hertel had asked him, said Jungenkrueger: "You didn't let him out again did you?"

Jungenkrueger said he replied, "No, this time he got out himself."

The attendant said he telephoned the Vanstone residence, but apparently got the wrong number. "I told her a lioness was loose and that we had called up for dogs, and not to let the kids out this morning. I told her to tell the neighbors."

ASKED FOR MOTHER

Doris Irene Dunbar, of the Somerset Hotel, Wellington, said she had received a call at about 7.30 a.m. May 3. "The person asked for my mother . . . he said 'this is Hertel's zoo and tell your mother a lion is out and to keep the kids in.'

"I was of the opinion he had called all over," said Mrs. Dunbar.

Mr. MacIsaac produced a sheet containing a list of telephone numbers which had been taken from the zoo premises and entered them as an exhibit. A number written opposite the name Vanstone was not in fact the number of the Vanstone residence, he claimed.

Dr. R. T. H. Nixon testified the girl had died of a broken neck.

Hertel was committed for trial and released on $1,500 bail.

Boy's Death In Traffic 'Accident'

NANAIMO—A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday on Brian David Hemphill, 2, of 631 Nicol Street.

Brian died two hours after being hit by a truck near his home May 12, at 11.10 a.m.

The truth about child actors!

What's the truth about the talented tots of TV, movies and Broadway? Are they angels, precocious geniuses or pampered little brats with too much ego and not enough paddling? And what about stage mothers — a breed often rumored to be the worst in show business?

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, read about these unusual small fry, the truth about their problems in adjusting to their strange lives and how some of them — such as Eddie Hodges of Broadway's "The Music Man" — got there!

And you'll read what old-time child stars such as Jackie Cooper and Shirley Temple have to say about letting their own children become troupers.
